→ IELTS MODULES

There are 4 modules

- Listening
- Reading
- Writing
- Speaking

1. Listening Section

Duration: 30 minutes

- You will be presented with four recorded texts, including monologues and conversations by native speakers.
- You must then answer a series of questions that assess your ability to comprehend the main ideas, detailed information, opinions, and attitudes expressed by the speakers.
- Additionally, you will be tested on your ability to understand the purpose of the spoken words and follow the progression of ideas.
- The recordings feature a variety of voices and accents from native speakers, and each section will be played only once.
- It's important to note that the Listening component is identical for both the Academic and General Training versions of the test.

2. Reading Section

Duration: 60 minutes

- The Reading component of the test consists of 40 questions that cover a diverse range of reading skills. These questions are designed to assess your ability to comprehend the general idea, main concepts, details, and arguments in a text.
- You will also need to identify the opinions, attitudes, and purpose of the writers. The question types used in this component vary to test different reading techniques, such as skimming and understanding the writer's perspective.

Reading – Academic

- In the Academic version of the test, you will encounter three lengthy texts that encompass a wide range of styles, from descriptive and factual to discursive and analytical. These texts are authentic and have been sourced from books, journals, magazines, and newspapers.
- While they are intended for a non-specialist audience, they are appropriate for individuals who are preparing for undergraduate or postgraduate courses or seeking professional registration.

Reading – General Training

- The General Training version requires you to read extracts from books, magazines, newspapers, notices, advertisements, company handbooks, and guidelines.
- These are materials you are likely to encounter on a daily basis in an English-speaking environment.

3. Writing Section

Duration: 60 minutes

Writing – Academic

The Academic version of the Writing component consists of two tasks, each addressing topics of broad relevance and suitability for individuals entering undergraduate or postgraduate studies, or those seeking professional registration.

Writing – General Training

The General Training version of the Writing component comprises two tasks that revolve around topics of general interest, designed to assess candidates' ability to communicate effectively in common real-life situations.

4. Speaking Section

Duration: 11 to 14 minutes

The Speaking component of the test evaluates your proficiency in spoken English and typically takes about 11 to 14 minutes to complete. It is recorded for assessment purposes. Notably, the Speaking component is identical in both the Academic and General Training versions, similar to the Listening component.

❖ Types of IELTS

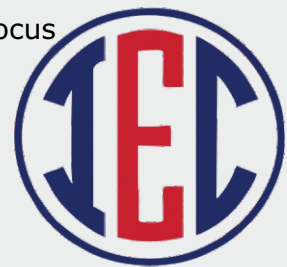

There are several types of IELTS exams, each designed for different purposes and individuals. The main types of IELTS are:

IELTS Academic:

This test is primarily for individuals who plan to study in an English-speaking country. It assesses a wide range of language skills, including Listening, Reading, Writing, and Speaking, with an emphasis on academic language and tasks.

IELTS General Training:

This test is typically taken by individuals who are planning to migrate to an English-speaking country for work or immigration purposes, or for those who wish to undertake non-academic training programs. It also assesses Listening, Reading, Writing, and Speaking skills, but with a focus on everyday language and tasks.
